For the first time, the remarkable couple depicted in The Blind Side tell their own deeply inspiring story

A bestselling book and an Oscar-nominated movie—the story of Michael Oher and the family who adopted him has become one of the most talked-about true stories of our time. But until now, Leigh Anne and Sean Tuohy have never told this astonishing tale in their own words.

For the Tuohy's, it all begins with family. Leigh Anne decided early on that she would raise her children to become “cheerful givers.” Sean believed that one day he could provide a home that would be “a place of miracles.” Together, they raised two remarkable children who shared their Christian faith and their commitment to making a difference. And then one day, Leigh Anne met a homeless African-American boy named Michael and decided that her family could be his. She and her husband taught Michael what this book teaches all of us: everyone has a blind side, but a loving heart always sees a path toward true charity.

LEIGH ANNE AND SEAN TUOHY live in Memphis, but travel all over the world speaking about their family, their faith, and how each of us can make a difference in the world. Leigh Anne owns an interior design company and Sean, who for several years played professional basketball, now owns more than seventy restaurant franchises.

SALLY JENKINS, who will collaborate with the Tuohy's, is an award-winning columnist and feature writer for The Washington Post, and is the author or co-author of several books, including Lance Armstrong's It's Not About the Bike, Pat Summitt's Reach for the Summit, and The State of Jones (written with John Stauffer). She lives in New York City.
